Tech Slumbers Till Dawn

Sleepy students arrive at the start of a fresh day.

The Sunrise Cannan marker shows a historical beginning at Tech.

Dawn . . . the start of a new day . . . sleepy Techites and devoted teachers take their places in the sun. Automobiles loaded with pupils and faculty members quiet their motors and mufflers. Like the children who lived in a shoe, teen-agers, still groggy with sleep, pour out of the buses at the gates. Slowly Tech comes alive. Small clusters of pupils discussing the coming events of the day dot the campus. Others, like strays from the flock, stand alone frantically boning for tests or preparing homework they just could not find time to do. Gradually the sun looms more apparent in the sky. The chimes sound . . . 8:07. Pupils scatter. But some Titans are early birds.

Stuart Hall is frosted with a covering of snow.

The Arsenal

Friendly Squirrel

Pupils awaken to the beginning of a busy day.

Bang! A gavel sounds for an x-hour meeting. Oom-pah! The pep band provides early morning Titan enthusiasm. Ruf! A dog comes to school. We hear the murmur of quiet conversations, the sound of shuffling feet, squirrels chattering madly high in the trees, doors slamming open and shut to admit students and teachers to classrooms and meetings, the cheery "Hi!" called across campus. Squeak, squeak . . . the flag is raised to meet the sun.

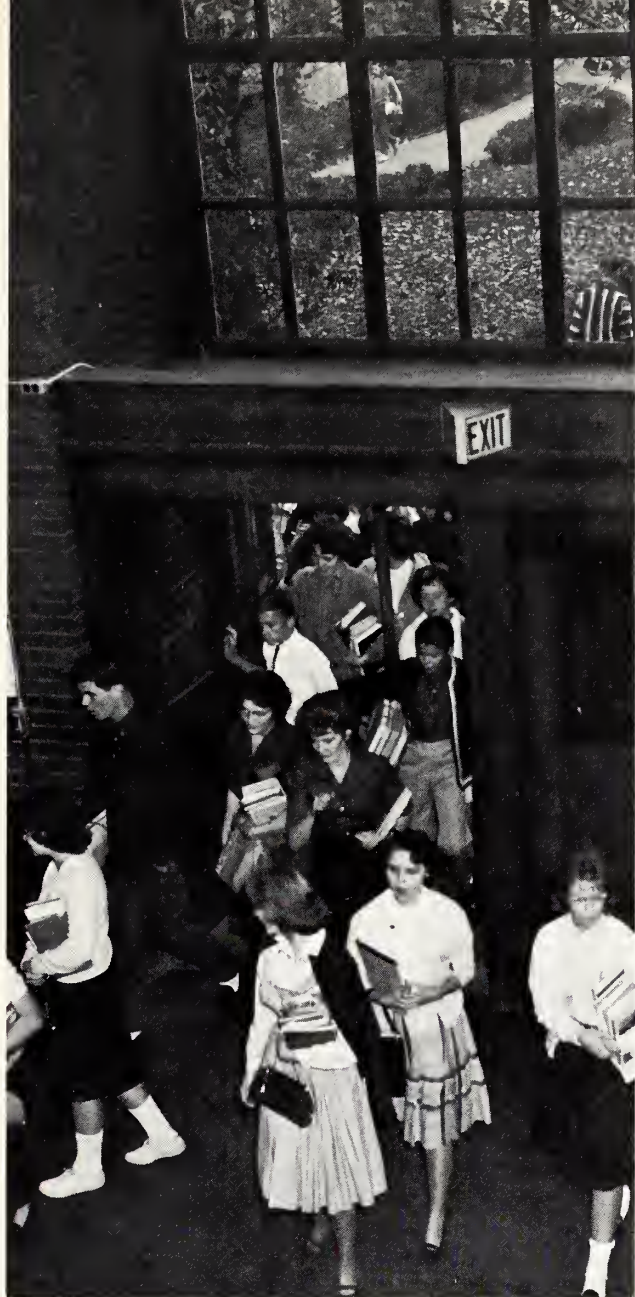

"X-hours are ridiculous," thinks this Tech visitor.

Drowsy Key Club members assemble for an x-hour meeting.

A quiet calm envelops the campus in the early morning.

Eager students rush into the Main at 8:07.

Days Begin Noisily

Time to synchronizel

The flag is raised to meet the sun.

Lunch period doubles as a rest period for some. Students relax outdoors.

Lunch line-up!

Rush, rush, rush . . . tardy slips . . . "the predicate noun is . . ." "Say, what's for lunch today? I don't eat till the seventh!" Roll call . . . football practice tonight . . . club meeting the tenth . . . page two due tomorrow . . . when can I do my homework? Running around this campus gets me down! Do you think I'll ever graduate?

Teachers keep students on their toes in class.

Athletes spend tenth-hours practicing.

3:15-Busy Time

Special accosions coll for tenth-hour sociolizing.

Naturol scientists collect leaves during and after class.

Activities abound at 3:15 p.m.

The close of school—kids of all types eagerly and anxiously make their way through the noisy halls to get home to study and recall the day's work and fun over the phone. For many, the end of school is a car filled with kids and armloads of books. For teachers, it is chatting, leaving the Arsenal, checking boxes again. Many feel that school ends by rushing out of the gates to meet a friend and stop at the drugstore for a coke. Others find that taking that last step or playing that last note as the marching band ends one of many practice sessions closes another day at Tech.

For some, watching the janitor make his way down the quiet, empty corridors, sweeping away litter which accumulated over a busy day, brings another day to a close, another hectic day at Tech. While the end of school may be all this, those looking back on a day's activities find that it ends not only with the ringing of the bell but with a golden invitation asking one to return—sunset.

Tired Titans Leave Tech

Studious Techites prepare for a long weekend.

Techites scoot homeward after a day ot school.

A janitor continues his work at the end of day.

Titonic spirit was shown before the Tech-Kokomo gome.

Sunset Marks Day's End

OUR RAY OF HELP

An enlightened world places ever-increasing demands upon all of us for more training and educational experience. As the school year comes to an end, climaxed by the graduation of another outstanding group of young people, we must think of this as truly a commencement. No longer can anyone expect even four successful years of high school to equip him satisfactorily for what he hopes to achieve. The class work, the study, the activities, and the associations — of which we will often be reminded as we turn the pages of this yearbook — should offer us the opportunity to decide upon a goal toward which our aim of achievement might be directed. But only by continuing efforts of learning can we hope to attain and keep that degree of achievement we do desire. Let us not be content with our accomplishments thus far; let us reflect, then move onward to find our place in the sun.

H. L. Longshore,
Acting Principal

Odus A. Landreth

As one of the vice-principals, Kenneth Puckett is in charge of finances and buildings and grounds. Odus Landreth is the vice-principal in charge of teacher personnel. For the benefit of students going to college, C. Gaylord Allen, guidance director, administers placement and college entrance exams. Among his many other duties he also counsels students who have scholastic problems. Ithel Shoemaker, director of buildings and grounds, maintains our campus and buildings as well as the various shops.

Ready and willing to accept the responsibilities of vice principals are three of Tech's outstanding personalities. Aside from assisting Acting Principal Howard Longshore, each has his own duties to perform. Warren F. Haas, whose office is located in the basement of the Arsenal, conducts the evening school division. He is less familiar to the day students than are the other two. A better known personality to daytime Techites is Fred N. Reeder, who has the responsibilities of programming, curriculum planning and sponsor rooms. Counseling boys is just one of the duties of Herman T. Hinshaw who deals with matters of safety and traffic and school activities.

Charles Dagwell

An able and efficient administration keeps Tech running smoothly. Headed by our acting principal, Howard L. Longshore, a staff of qualified directors guides the divisions of campus life. Divisions and their directors are Charles Dagwell, athletics; Wallace Potter, special education; Leon Maurer, Diversified Cooperative Education; G. Kenneth Barr, audio visual; Chelsea Stewart, program production; and Cecil Tresslar, publications. James Stewart is assistant director of the Tech Evening School.

Many Titans turn to understanding counselors during the school year who help them choose courses to reach their goals. Often these personal guides plan special employment programs so pupils can attend school and work part-time. Whether a student has a problem in school or at home, he knows there is someone interested in his problems and willing to give needed assistance. Tech's advisers on personal matters are Ernest Cline and Floyd Tobrocke, guidance; Kenneth Bayless and Ernest Medcalfe, boys' counselors; Miss Sharon Parrett, Mrs. Dorothy Stout, Mrs. Ethel McIntosh, and Mrs. Sandra Tharp, girls' counselors.

Mrs. Zaearine Davis, Miss Marjorie Lawson, and Miss Ruth Dunmeyer, Social Warkers.

Tech's staff of advisers who superintend the training of the student body is like a handbook of information. These advisers give helpful directions, information and suggestions. Like pages in a directory, they are always handy when some troubled Techite needs advice and guidance. Secretaries, like footnotes in the handbook, aid our advisers in general correspondence and maintenance of important records. The student deans are especially helpful in solving pupil problems.

Night 'n' Day Help

Loss cards, grade transcripts, phone calls, money, and school supplies—what do they have in common? They're all kept in meticulous order by members of Tech's office staff in the Arsenal. These "behind-the-scenes" workers take care of details in pupils' daily school lives. The evening school staff works night and day in handling schedules and records of more than 3,900 "night (school) people."

Staff Does Varied Work

Mr. E. C. Hamilton, Head Custodian

Working to keep Tech in perfect order throughout the year is our office staff. Office workers aid both students and administrators. E. C. Hamilton, with 20 years of service, is our head custodian. With 50 custodians under him, he sees that our classrooms and grounds are kept in ideal shape. Miss Louisa Steeg, Tech's own guidance clerk, helps give specialized and standardized exams. Order and respect are maintained by our policemen, Sgt. Martin and Sgt. Heavenridge.

The lunchroom staff arrives at 8:15 a.m. to begin to prepare several thousand lunches needed to feed hungry students. From the beginning of the fourth hour to the end of the seventh, these hard-working staffers tolerate the gossiping and shouting of the pupils while trying to serve tasty lunches.

The Health Center, better known as the nurses' office, is a quiet place where Techites can rest when the "sun's not shining" for them. The nurses have a record of every student in order to know which students have visited them. Students with scratched fingers and broken bones alike are given first aid in the center. The nurses do not give medicine but call parents to inform them of their child's illness. These busy women sometimes find time to operate a dental clinic.

OUR CHANCE TO SHINE

Extra-curricular and co-curricular activities give students the chance to "shine" by sharing their knowledge and talents with their friends outside class. It is usually during these meetings before and after school that lasting friendships are formed. The tenth and eleventh hour rehearsals, meetings, and parties provide enjoyment and entertainment for teachers and pupils alike. The rehearsals are sometimes tiring and the meetings boring, but good times make the hard work rewarding.

Fun (d) -Raising Mardi Gras

With the coming of autumn, faculty as well as students look forward to the first annual social festivity for all. Mardi Gras! Variety was the keynote to this year's successful family fun night. It was a truly gay holiday. Among this year's "funsville" booths were the Service Club's cider and doughnut stand, the Boys' Octette's vaudeville shows, and the SAO Board's "Try Your Luck" (win a fish) booth. For those Techites looking for a little more excitement, the ROTC opened the rifle range as a shooting gallery. People who wanted to relax with a few tears, a little laugh, or some thrilling suspense trotted to Stuart Hall, where the Drama-Speech Club gave performances of four skits.

Back in the gym, Techoir and orchestra members rejoiced over the election of their candidates for Mr. Bass Clef and Miss Treble Clef. Before Mardi Gras, club members slaved to make their booths real "money-makers," and after the big night was over and the coins were counted, Techites were happy the Music Department had sponsored the huge fund-raising project.

Cider sippin' was popular at the Mardi Gras.

The Tech Band is one of the busiest organizations on the campus. During the football season, the band plays at all the home games as well as many out of town games. Frequent afternoon practice sessions are necessary to make Tech's band one of the best in the city. Participation in the Veteran's Day and Christmas parades is also on the band's agenda. Thanksgiving and Christmas concerts and school assemblies keep the band busy during the winter. Spring brings the Yard-Parks Clean-Up Parade, the band-orchestra concert, and the Federal Inspection. Other musical groups connected with the band include the dance band; the brass ensemble; and the pep band, which plays at the basketball games. In the fall, the band sold candy in order to raise money for new uniforms. Their food concession at the Mardi Gras also added to funds.

An important part of Tech's marching unit is the majorettes and flag twirlers. These girls practice their routines with the band. Dressed in colorful green and white outfits, the majorettes and flag twirlers perform at games and parades.

Music is a vital part of Tech life. Beautiful music is produced by the concert orchestra under the direction of Raymond Brandes. Consisting of 61 members, the orchestra performs at many school functions. The concert orchestra requires many hours of diligent practice, and the result of truly sparkling tones and tunes is worth it.

The Tech Music Club offers young musicians an excellent opportunity to participate in musical activities. Under the sponsorship of Richard Orton, the club has become an active part of Tech life. A trip to Clowes Hall is one project which was undertaken this year. Musically inclined Techites enjoy the activities this club offers.

Tasty food is enjoyed by Techair officers and guests at the yearly Kick-Off Banquet.

Having a very heavy schedule throughout the school year, the Techair is always on the go. The Kickoff Banquet opened the singing group's year; their first performance was at the state student council convention. Christmas took the choir downtown, where they caroled. Vocalists became salesmen as they sold their own Christmas record. To welcome spring, the choir gave its annual concert at the World War Memorial. Techair's handclap welcomed many guests, and Mr. Moon gave many pennies to members who had special events to celebrate.

Boys' Octette and Girls' Ensemble members were even busier since they are Techair members too. These small vocal groups performed frequently for school and non-school groups.

An opportunity to participate in several school programs awaits members of the Boys' and Girls' Concert Clubs each year. The concert clubs combine their talents every spring with other Tech music groups and present an "Enchanted Evening." They sing at city performances of all girls' and boys' concert groups and have a concert of their own during the year.

The Madrigal Singers sing a cappella and, according to the name of their course, Chorus VIII, are the most advanced singing group at Tech. Dressed in bright red, the "Mads" dazzled their audiences with their performances of fifteenth and sixteenth century songs. They impressed new Techites with the singing of the traditional "Tech Hymn" at the freshman orientation programs and showed others how Tech "shines" in their performances outside school.

Class representatives are elected to the Student Affairs Organization in the fall of the year. The SAO has the task of governing some of the affairs of the student body. But it also has the fun of planning and accomplishing many worthwhile projects. Among its duties are the all-school elections of the Jamboree Queen and the Princess of light, Tech's beauty who was to ride in the Christmas parade.

The SAO Executive Board plans the Harvest Moon Ball. This year two of the Board's own members reigned over the "Autumn Twilight" dance. The SAO helps promote sportsmanship by sponsoring a slogan contest and by placing posters on bulletin boards. This active group is in charge of the spring clean-up campaign and encourages students to keep the campus "shining" throughout the year.

SAO Coordinates Activities

What force is behind the all-school activities that run as smoothly as IBM machines? If it's an all-school event that is preplanned, publicized, and promoted, the Student Affairs Organization is probably sponsoring the activity.

Many of the funds which the SAO obtains by the Executive Board's booths at the Mardi Gras and through the sale of many items, which this year included pillow "seats" for use at football games and hats and Titan buttons for the sectional basketball tournament, are used for receptions. The group began the year by honoring its roll room representatives and sponsor teachers with a special after-school reception in Stuart Tower.

A girls' college tea, boys' college mixer, and annual "surprise" Valentine tea for teachers found many student workers from the SAO in attendance. And after the teas come the dishes! Although messengers in the Student Center sometimes do the "dirty work," several SAO Board members claim dishpan hands. Two special meals are planned by the Board each year: the Christmas Dinner in honor of members' parents and faculty members who aid the SAO, and the May Breakfast, which is prepared by the underclassmen in honor of the Board's senior members.

More than 1,100 student council leaders from all over the state attended the Indiana Association of Student Councils convention at Tech this October. SAO Board members prepared for this special affair for nearly a year and worked on the convention almost exclusively for a month.

The Student-Faculty Basketball Game was planned by the SAO too. Money earned from this one-afternoon affair was added to the principle of the Hanson H. Anderson Scholarship Fund. The scholarships were given to a senior boy and a senior girl on Honor Day. Local businessmen added to the fund by advertising in the basketball program.

Leadership was taught and demonstrated at the leadership skills workshop given by the Board for its own members in the fall. A candlelighting ceremony in which members renewed their pledge to help improve Tech was a part of the workshop.

Hours of time were spent after school by elections committee members who had the task of counting ballots in all-school votes.

Citizenship, scholastic ability, and participation in extra-curricular activities are some of the requirements for membership in Tech's chapter of the Key Club International. Boys apply for membership in this Kiwanis Club-sponsored group. A special project of this service group is the fall homecoming. Members encourage attendance at this event and plan the half-time ceremonies. Club members usher at senior convocation and vespers; they sell refreshments at several school events. The Turnkey, a turnabout dance, is another of these service-minded teens' projects.

$400 Given To Red Cross

One hundred per cent enrollment in High School Red Cross started the club's successful year. Members planned several party boxes, counted enrollment supplies for the roll rooms, and prepared an international album to be sent to a foreign country. Several Tech organizations contributed to the Red Cross overseas chest to be used for students in a disaster area.

After donning blue and white pin-striped Red Cross uniforms, several girls served a turkey dinner at the November Marion County Red Cross High School Board meeting. Other club members contributed time by placing Red Cross and United Fund posters in the neighborhood and by working at the Chapter House. Members helped with the Valentine Tea and "Bundle Days."

Shield Stands For Service

Members of school service groups, which consist of volunteer messengers, gate, street, bicycle, and automobile guards, safety patrol, and full-period hall and door monitors, make up most of the Tech Service Club's membership.

Meeting twice a month in the Student Center, the members plan and work out ideas in detail for their annual projects. The club provides workers for the Freshman Orientation Program, who welcome and introduce new students to Tech. Two bountiful Thanksgiving food baskets were given needy families this year.

The club sold mums to fill the treasury and sponsored a "Wonderland by Night," the White Christmas Dance, during the holiday season. To promote efficiency in school service work, to further good fellowship among Techites, and to create a better cooperative spirit in the school are the purposes of the Tech Service Club.

The Future Nurses Club's purpose is to encourage interest in nursing by informing members of nursing opportunities. The "nurses-to-be" sell Christmas holly to purchase food for needy families and Easter seals for Crossroads Rehabilitation Center.

Language Clubs Keep Busy

The purpose of the Spanish Club and the Junior Classical League is to create an interest in language outside the classroom. The Spanish Club offers an enjoyable after-school activity by having special programs and by conducting its meetings in Spanish. Once again this year the club feasted on tasty Mexican food at the Taco House. Members of the JCL find the age-old Latin language an interesting topic for research. This year the club planned a Roman banquet and other festivities based upon the ancient customs of Rome.

French students who are interested in extra-curricular activities often join the French Club for fun and enjoyment. Last summer Van Butler and Clara Frisbie were chosen to visit France through Indiana University's Honors Abroad Program and added to the fun of French by speaking the language during club meetings. Most meetings are conducted in the language so members may learn as they derive a spirit of fellowship from club meetings.

German Club activities began with a "plant potting patio porch picnic" at the sponsor's home. After potting nearly two hundred plants, these language enthusiasts were ready to sell them at the Mardi Gras. Club members extended the holiday season by having a New Year's party instead of the traditional December festivities just so they could celebrate at the time of year the Germans do.

Math club meetings are never lacking interest as well as entertainment. Movies, faculty advisors, and even student speakers are often at the head of the agenda. The climax of the year came this May when seniors and others who had achieved in the field of mathematics were honored by the club at the annual May Tea.

Gazing at stars and mixing colors are but a few of the projects of the Chemistry-Physics Club. A telescope brought out the star-watchers at the Mardi Gras, but the "highlight" of the school year for these scientific-minded students was a demonstration on color which they presented at the Hobby Show last fall. After completion of their work on color, these scientists resumed their study of the measurement of light.

Making geometrical ornaments was another Math Club project.

Pupils Learn, Earn Credit

Keith Jorvis works at Midland Lumber and Supply.

Leon Maurer heads the Diversified Cooperative Education program at Tech. Those qualifying for this worthwhile program have the chance of choosing, preparing for, and entering the vocation of their choice while still in school. The best way to determine the proper occupations is through the students' interests, abilities, and personalities. One period a day is given to DCE classroom work, and fifteen hours a week are actually spent on the job.

Sometimes students must start their days early because the jobs they have chosen require promptness. A good example is those who work at Community Hospital. Besides local hospitals, these students may be found in cafeterias, service stations, or body shops. A student may earn one credit per semester in D. C. E. while he becomes familiar and experienced in a chosen occupation.

Pupils in D.C.E. spend parts of their days in class.

Clubs Prepare For Future

Although only a year old, the History Club has over 40 members. Relating past history and the news of today is the goal of the History Club. This group often has programs with speakers, films, and slides; they take several trips.

John Habig, who showed leadership and an interest in history represented Tech at the Bellamy Flag Award ceremonies in Chattanooga, Tennessee, this fall.

Mickey Seulean went on the Freedoms Foundation Valley Forge pilgrimage as a representative of his grade school. Tech has won Freedoms Foundation awards every year since their existence. Miss Jeannette Tobey heads the Foundation committee.

Ilze Henkels was the recipient of the senior girl's good citizen Daughters of the American Revolution award. Several seniors attended Girls' and Boys' states during the summer.

Stamps, an interesting facet of history, seem to intrigue Kenneth Hilton and Gregory Owens.

In the spring of 1950 a new club was started at Tech. During the time of its existence the Future Teachers of America group has guided many young people into the teaching profession. Under the leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Stout, these prospective teachers participate in many worthwhile projects. The FTA meets every Tuesday at 7:30 a.m., and a guest speaker is usually present at these "sunrise ceremonies." Besides meeting in the mornings, some of the members are cadet teachers at Tech or neighboring schools.

Another club which promotes the profession of its name is the Future Printers Club. It was formed in order to help its members learn more about printing. The club's motto is "Expand Your Knowledge." The FPC visits printing firms to learn new techniques.

A wonderful way to begin a new day is through prayer. Members of the Prayer Circle meet each morning at eight in the basement of the Arsenal. Through these devotions, members of the Prayer Circle feel better equipped to start their day.

Young artists at Tech have an opportunity to meet outside class with other people interested in art by attending meetings of the Art Club. The club takes many trips to art exhibits, art galleries, and museums. Whether art is just a hobby or a prospective occupation for these people, they all gain aesthetic values from Art Club participation.

Members of the Prayer Circle meet in the basement of the Arsenal each morning at eight.

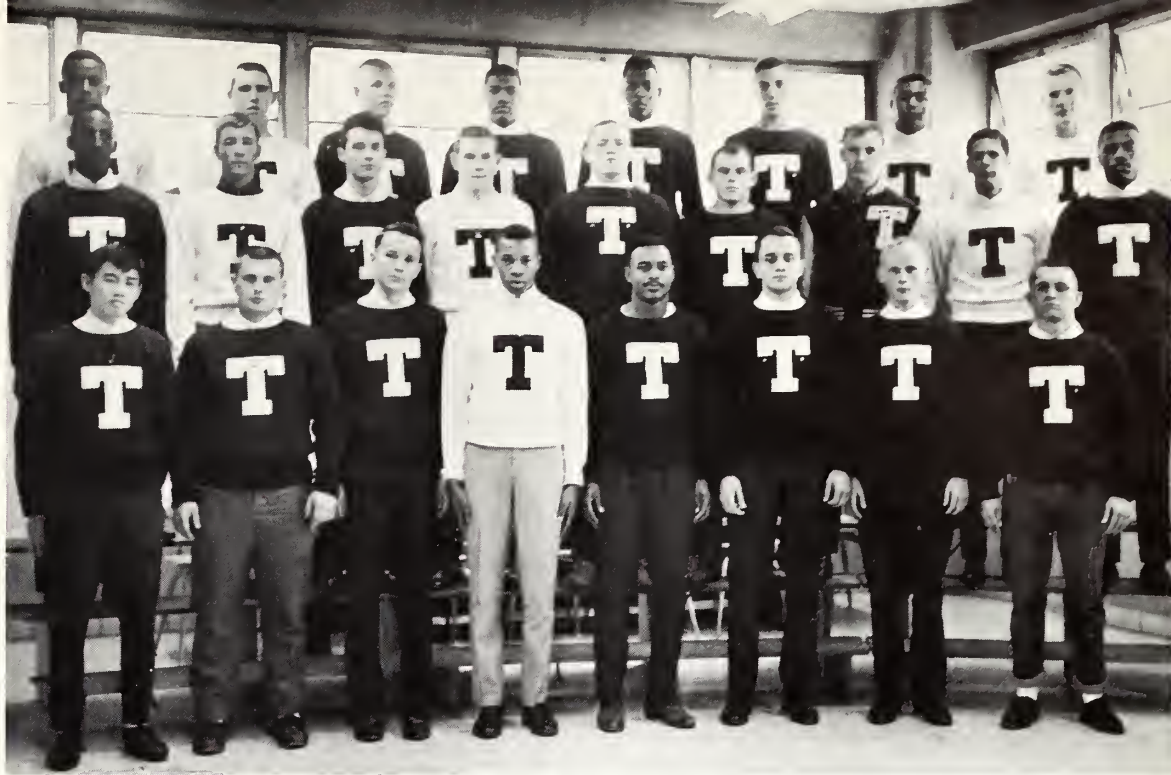

Polly Hollowell and Janice Blond receive admirable comments about their GAA letter sweaters.

Athletes who earn their letters in any sport are eligible for membership in the Block-T Club. Boys retain their letters for life and are admitted to Tech games without charge when they wear their letter sweaters.

Tournaments highlighted the year for the Girls' Athletic Association. Girls participated in several sports throughout the year and competed in a class volleyball tournament. Bowling enthusiasts showed their skills at the Fox-Hunt bowling alley near school.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps, better known on campus as the ROTC, was established at Tech in 1919 by Captain Hardin under the National Defense Act of 1916. The ROTC offers excellent opportunities in military training for all boys. It teaches discipline, the proper use of guns, and prepares boys for future military duty. The Reserve Officers Training Corps basically resembles the United States Army in the regulation uniforms, drills, and inspections. Many opportunities are offered by the ROTC department for learning and advancement in rank. Included in the ROTC are the color guard, rifle team, drill team, army instructors, and sponsors. Activities of the ROTC include drills, parades, inspections, taking part in assemblies, and the placement of guards for school-sponsored events. The Tech ROTC has won an honor rating every year for the past several years at the annual Federal Inspection held in May. The highlight of the year for ROTC cadets is the Military Ball, held in the spring.

In the light of self-expression the Drama-Speech Club, Thespians, Speech and Debate Team contribute greatly to Tech's place in the sun. From the beginning of the school year the Drama-Speech Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Malay, is busy at play practices and working on skits for school assemblies. All students who have appeared in plays at Tech are eligible for membership in the National Thespan Society. The club provides interested students with a chance to become acquainted with the theatre. Mrs. May sponsors the Speech and Debate Teams, whose members are busy bringing home many awards. Something special this year were the invitational speech meets held at Tech with Indiana schools participating.

"Wheel of Fortune" was the Radio Club's theme at the Mardi Gras. At the Hobby Show they had a Civil Defense booth on Radio Operation. This club helps the members in obtaining licenses, but to be able to operate the equipment a student must have previously secured an amateur license. The members learn Morse code at the meetings in the Ham Shack in Morgan Hall.

The Quill and Scroll, an international honor society, is for high school students who excel in journalism. To qualify for membership a Cannon yearbook member must have performed in an outstanding manner for at least two full semesters, and newspaper staff members must have 2,000 column lines published. Also, a B— or better grade average and a recommendation by the staff sponsor are required. The new members were initiated at Christmas in a candle-lighting ceremony.

Arsenal Cannon reporters are frequently seen scurrying around the West Residence struggling to meet an approaching deadline. Still, their copy gets to press on time, and it becomes easy to believe that an award-winning paper is produced even with the antics of the "kiddies." While spying, creating features, and telling jokes, staffers diligently cover their beats in order to keep the student body informed of activities in all corners of the campus. After-school sessions of pouring over page layouts with a coke in hand are common occurrences. Staffers attended several special journalism conventions this year. The year was brought to a successful end with a banquet at which the editors for the 1964-65 Arsenal Cannon were informed that their life of ease would soon come to an end.

Composing and editing the Arsenal Cannon Yearbook includes numerous tasks. Among the duties each staff member performs are selling advertising, laying out pages, composing copy, and snapping pictures. Long hours are spent in getting all the material ready for the printers. Twenty-five of Tech's top students work diligently throughout the day and on spare time, to make the deadlines. Some of the work must be taken home as class time is not enough to complete the work. It takes an efficient staff to meet all the deadlines and get the yearbook out on time for the graduating seniors and the yearbook dance.

Varsity Titan gridgers tackled many foes and finished the season victoriously.

TITANS--OUR SOURCE OF ENERGY

Energy comes from Tech's athletic Titans as energy radiates from the sun. Our Tech teams excel in wrestling, baseball, track, tennis, golf, basketball and football. An abundance of athletics is evidence of the enforcement of the fitness program that has been effectively stressed throughout the United States. Through numerous activities, our students receive exercise that is necessary for them to maintain good health.

Cheerleaders prove that girls are not left out of Tech's athletic program. The three squads practice daily in order to keep their bodies in tone for those extra special yells which require gymnastic ability to be incorporated with cheers.

Through active participation in vigorous sports and activities, Tech boys and girls learn body discipline and precision. Students who have taken an active part in athletics know the value of habitual exertion and endurance in reaching perfection in physical fitness.

Yeah! Rah! Team! Beat 'em! Team! Beat 'em! These two familiar yells known to Tech sports fans are led by enthusiastic cheerleaders who help build school spirit and cheer Tech teams to victory. Varsity, reserve, and freshman squads lead yells for their respective teams. Three 1964 seniors began the freshman group in 1960. Besides practicing once or twice a week, the girls make money for outfits by having car washes and sponsoring a Mardi Gras booth; they fix huge baskets of candy for the players before "away" games. Although these extra projects keep them busy, they continue to develop new and better yells with the guidance of their sponsor Phillip Quillin.

Basketball Excitement Sweeps Tech

Tech's majorettes are an integral part of all basketball games.

Excitement is never lacking at a Tech basketball game, and nearly every Techite has a part in its production. The eager and enthusiastic crowd sees the ability and style of each game. As the national anthem ends and the ROTC color guard retires, our varsity basketball team runs out onto the playing floor to the chorus of "The Tech Student" as tooted forth by Tech's own pep band. Loud cheers and the tweet of a referee's whistle are familiar sounds to the basketball fan who watches the tenseness of a game grow. Basket after basket is shot in to score, and spectators "stand up an' holler" for the mighty Titans. Five times during the year a home basketball game is the site of a coronation. The Student Affairs Organization does its part in presenting half-time ceremonies complete with basketball queens.

Coach Jack Bradford offers same good advice.

Fight! Fight! Fight! This is the Tech Titon spirit.

Down the floor, across the line and John Nell makes another basket.

Four years ago, five freshmen boys tried out and made the freshman basketball team. Four years later, these five boys were the hub around which the fabulous Varsity Titan roundballers rotated. "Mackie" Johnson, forward, held each opponent to a minimum number of points while Dave Sexson, a slight 6'-3", lived up to his famous name at the other forward position. The duties of guards were quite ably attended to by 6'-2" Gary Kennedy of Titan football fame and John Nell, 5'-11" co-captain. Center, Jon "Spud" Spadorcia filled out the "Dream Team" while the team ambled through the season. With the help of sharp-shooters Dave Harvey, Jim Boone, and Gene Akers, the Titans couldn't do less than sport a near-perfect record.

Tech's least known, but fastest growing sport is wrestling. Everyone has the opportunity to participate regardless of height or weight. Each person is placed into his weight class and each match is classed by these weight classes. Wrestling is an individual sport designed to develop agility, speed, balance, and strength. Tech has had many outstanding wrestlers and state champions. This season, Floyd Eldridge won the city championship in the heavyweight class with Eli Brown taking second, and Ralph Wendil and Velmon Graham who placed third. Everyone on the team must practice and work out every night. Most of the practice is done in the East Portable.

OUR LIGHT OF LEARNING

Members of the Tech faculty might be called the "Lights of Learning." Offering young people training that will help them in a particular job or in the home with everyday problems becomes the teachers' main goals. They also help prepare students for entrance into college and for special assignments. Each year the faculty tries new approaches to help the students further. Their profession is not a dull and boring one, because they participate in many different activities such as the Student-Faculty Basketball game. The faculty helps in developing skills and knowledges of the students. Because they can't do these jobs alone, the teachers need the cooperation of all the students. Tech should be very proud of its hardworking faculty.

Mmmm! Those luscious Tech cookies.

Providing one of the many fields of learning at Tech is the English Department. Courses offered in this department include the standard English, special classes in speech, and publications. Developmental reading programs offer Tech students opportunities to improve reading skills. This department supports the Drama-Speech Club members in presenting all-school plays. Under the watchful eye of department head, Miss Irene Rhades, the English department offers students interested in writing an opportunity to express themselves through many contests.

Paperback books are sold in the English Office. These books give Techites an opportunity to acquaint themselves with some of the finest works available at a very low price.

Tech can indeed be proud of its English Department for the work it does in preparing Techites for college and vocations.

LIBRARIANS—Mary Katherine Garst, Miss Marjorie Schack, Mrs. Dorothy Newcomer.

Headed by our able Miss Marjorie Schoch, the Tech library staff keeps our library running smoothly and efficiently. Containing over 20,000 books, 126 periodicals, and five newspapers, the library provides a wonderful source of material both for research or just for plain entertainment. Lunch hours and free periods can be spent profitably studying or just relaxing with a good fiction book. No student need panic when he is assigned a term paper or special report. The Tech library will almost always have on hand all the information for it.

Library assistants help keep our library functioning smoothly.

Miss Mono Woodward, BUSINESS EDUCATION DEPARTMENT HEAD.

Training pupils to enter the field of business is the difficult job of Miss Mona Woodward and her staff of teachers. The classes are always filled, at times too full, and there is a wide selection of classes to fill. A program of two years of typing proves helpful to future secretaries as well as to college bound students who will have many term papers to write. Shorthand is also a very popular course with college bound note-takers as well as future stenographers. Both typists and stenographers have the chance to earn awards for speed and accuracy in their fields. The department, also instructs pupils in bookkeeping, machine calculations, office practice, business law, filing, salesmanship, office production, and business mathematics. Extra materials have been added to several courses to give office bound pupils experience in data processing. Seeing that pupils can handle themselves in a world of automation is the aim of the Business Education Department.

Keeping Tech students in the finest condition physically, recreationally, and mentally is the responsibility of the Health and physical Education Department. The department offers not only the required first year of physical education and the academic course of health education but additional years of physical education, family living, driver education, narcotics and alcohol education, and nursing as well. Teachers work every day to keep pupils in good physical condition. Rope climbing, seasonal sports, forward and backward somersaults, and other acrobatic skills are just a few of the feats that teachers use to keep the students fit. The aim of the faculty members is to keep a healthy, happy Tech.

"Salve, guten Tag, Buenos días, Bonjour!" These greetings can be heard while walking along the east half of the second floor of Stuart Hall—the Foreign Language Department. Besides having highly-trained teachers, Tech has an up-to-date language laboratory in which students can see films, listen, and speak in a foreign tongue.

One, two, three! What kind of math will I take next year? This question comes up many times in a Techite's life. The department strives to give students broad knowledge of all kinds of math; therefore it offers more courses in the field, math, than any other high school in the city.

Physics pupils are timing how long it takes to run up the stairs and how much energy is being used.

Louis D. Allen—DEPARTMENT HEAD

Students taking a course in the Physical Science Department will learn some of the many wonders of the world. There are many unseen, but important forces that act upon us each day of our lives. The pressure of the atmosphere exerts upon us, how strings on a musical instrument are made, and why a ship will float are a few of the many marvels a student will learn. The Physics Department is equipped with many modern instruments and a staff of well trained teachers that know how to use them. Tech has one of the best Physical Science Departments in the state, and can offer a good basic training to anyone.

Organic sciences are studied in Tech's Biological Science Department in much detail. Of these sciences, biology stirs interest with its course of study including lessons on plant and animal life throughout the world. Biology is a joint science since botany and zoology are combined within it. Botany encourages students to study plant life and collect leaves, many of which may be found on the Tech campus. The question of why leaves are green is one of many answered in botany class. Insect collections and bird study are two areas of interest in zoology. Dissection is the means students use to study animal life in detail and to see how the body functions of each animal work.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Moore—DEPARTMENT HEAD.

"History in the making" is the Social Studies Department's motto whether it be in history, geography, economics, or government. Nineteen teachers undertake part of the task of fitting Techites into adult life. Through the courses taught in the department students learn to become good citizens at Tech, in the community, in the nation, and the world.

Each year, under the supervision of Miss Jeannette Tobey, Techites enter the Freedoms Foundation's Awards program. Students write speeches and essays, make tape recordings, assemble scrap books, and complete other projects that pertain to the American way of life. Tech has won more Freedom Foundation awards than any school in the state.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT—First Row: Mrs. Mildred Maare, Miss Shirley Parrett, Miss Diana Griffith, Miss Louise Swan. Row 2: Robert Simpson, William F. Moon, Raymond Brandes, John White, Richard Ortan.

Since music is important to many students, we at Tech are very fortunate in having an excellent Music Department. Tech offers the musically-inclined student an opportunity to express himself through voice or instrumental courses. Many students learn to appreciate the different aspects of music after taking music appreciation or music theory.

It is not unusual to hear a group such as the Madrigals practicing the X-hour to obtain perfection. The Tech choir, under the direction of Department Head, William Moon, also practices diligently in order to give many enjoyable programs. Other instrumental and vocal groups include the Concert Orchestra, Concert Band, String Ensemble, Boys' Octette, Girls' Ensemble, and Girls' and Boys' Concert Clubs.

Tech can certainly be proud of the golden opportunities the Music Department offers.

One may see students in the spring sitting on small camping stools with paper, a board, and pencil in hand sketching portions of the campus or surrounding neighborhoods; they are members of Tech's art classes. Also, a student with permission from the head of the art department, Oakley Richey, may enter sign painting, commercial art, craft arts, art metal craft, jewelry making, photography, ceramics, or sculpturing. The spectrum of art offered, covers a varied radius, and the finished projects that originate from these classes are often displayed in the department show cases.

Occasionally, while passing through the halls of the Main, one can smell pleasant aromas drifting from the Home Economics Department. Besides being taught to create heavenly smells in foods classes, girls at Tech can elect clothing, home management, and social practice.

This past fall girls who ranked above their other classmates were chosen from each of the millinery classes and were entertained at a tea. On the same day, the teachers at Tech were invited to a tea, and a foods class entertained another foods glass with a tea. The day suited everyone in the department to a "T."

"A World of Fashions," a style show, was introduced in the spring by the sewing division. The girls were required to try out for the show. As usual the girls looked their best and presented up-to-date wardrobes.

Two students apply their ability to the drafting table.

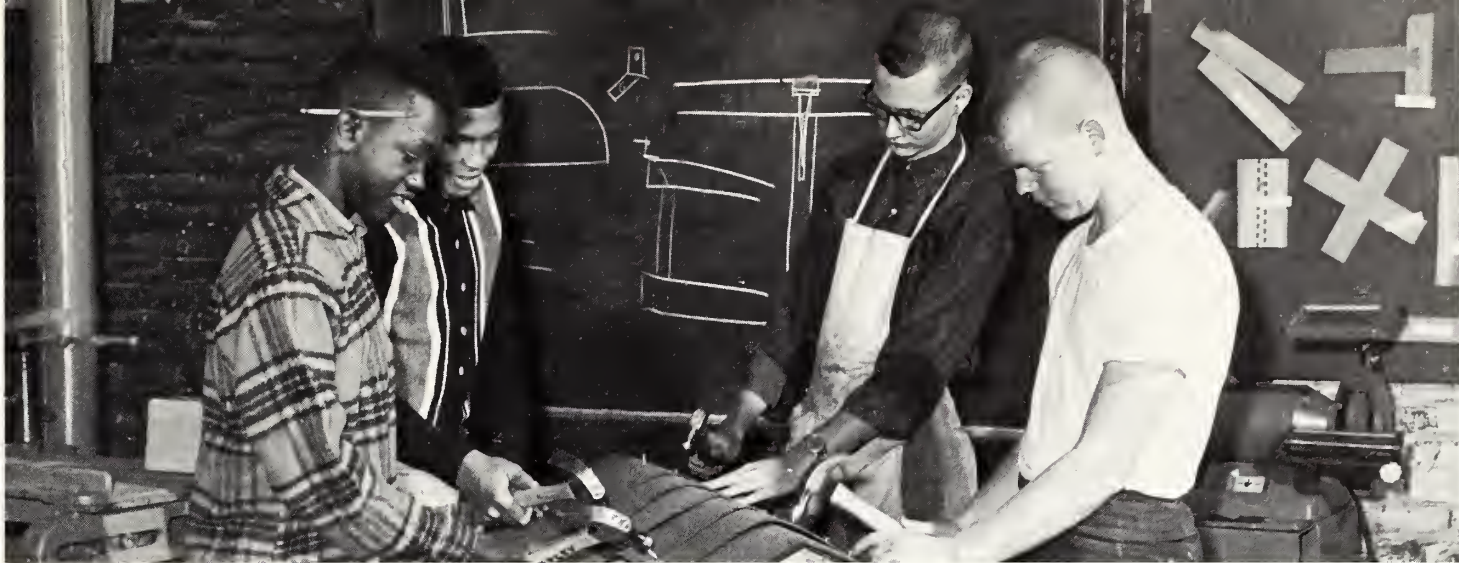

One step for training the mechanical and architectural engineers of the future is in the Drafting Department. A student may take Drafting throughout all four years at school and be placed in a job upon graduation. A student starts out with basic mechanical drawing. The future draftsman then advances to either architectural or machine drafting, depending on the field he wishes to enter. Basic drafting is required of any person entering any of the shop courses here at Tech. However, the drafting experience will help considerably in the future regardless of what field the student enters. Tech's Drafting Department has all the modern drafting instruments to give the student the best training he could possibly receive.

Here are some of the displays done by drafting classes that were on show in the Stuart.

Woodworking is just one of the many skills which boys in the Drafting Department are taught.

Bang! Bang! are the constant sounds heard in the Building Trades Department. Four boys hammer away to build a king size luxury dog house.

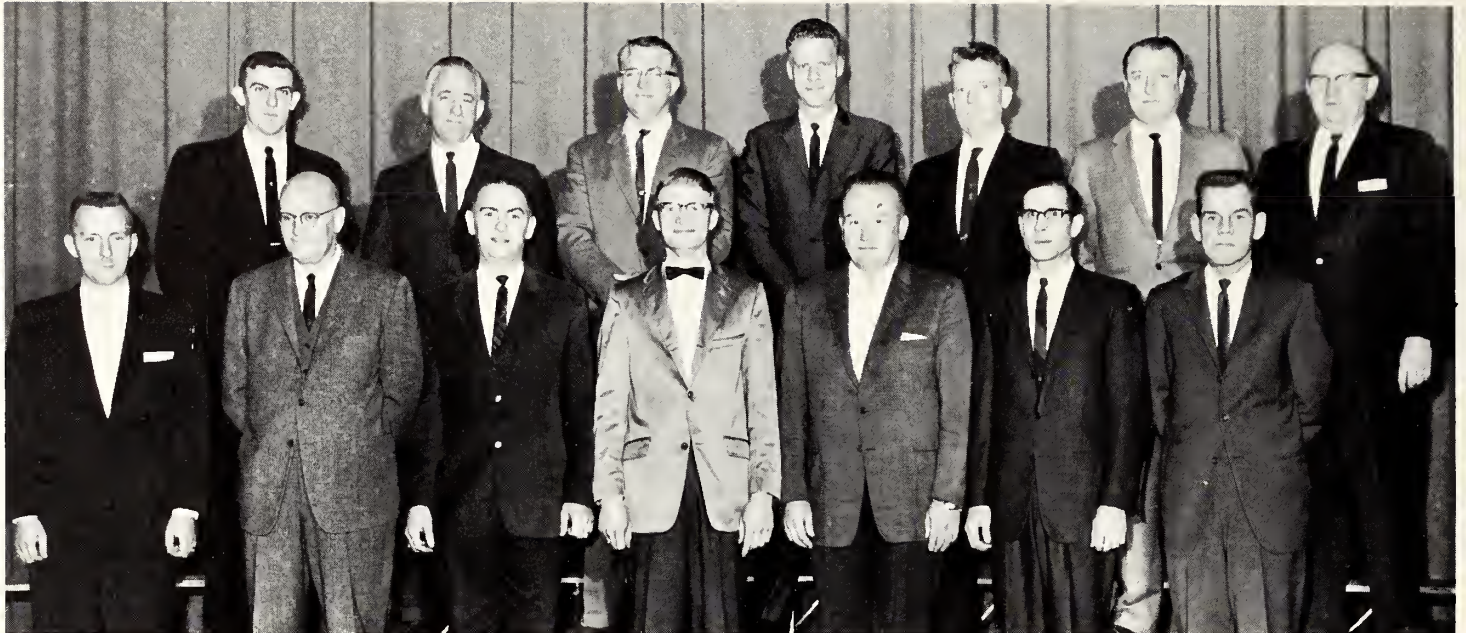

DEPARTMENT HEAD—Marris Waads

Wish to build a house, make a piece of furniture, paint, or construct lawn statues? The Building Trades Department offers instruction in all these fields. Carpentry, cabinetmaking, painting and decorating, masonry and plumbing are the various branches of the department. Freshman take a six week course in each field; after this basic training they may specialize in any field. Department head, Mr. Morris Woods, supervises a staff of able teachers. Upon completion of this course a student possesses knowledge of brick and block laying, plumbing, and house building. Many repair jobs around campus are performed by pupils in the Building Trades Department.

Two Metal Trades students mold their futures as they work in their classrooms to gain vocational training.

Wood pattern making, foundry practice, and machine shop work are just a few of the courses offered by the Metal Trades Department. Also the basic fundamentals of sheet metal work, gas and electric welding, and advanced machine shop are included. To protect the students, safety measures are stressed in the class. Industrious teachers prepare these students for the jobs that await them upon graduation. There is always a place in industry for skilled, efficient metal workers. Tech's Metal Trades Department offers many opportunities for future metal workers.

Techites break ground for future expansion..

Faculty members always enjoy the annual Valentine Tea which is sponsored by all the clubs working out of the Student Center. Coffee, punch and cookies were inviting to the eye and pleasant to the taste—one of the ways students show their appreciation to their teachers. Friday, January 31, 1964 was the day Techites have anxiously awaited for years. The groundbreaking ceremony for our new cafeteria was held. A member from each of the four classes was present along with members of faculty and administration. We are sure that our new cafeteria will be well worth waiting for. Picture taking time is a busy time at Tech for everyone: P.T.A. members, students and faculty. Once a year the P.T.A. sponsors an annual picture taking. Students smile brightly, the photographer snaps the picture and the P.T.A. makes money. Students undoubtedly will treasure these pictures for many years.

Seniors Shine on Legion Day

Tech—to a senior, these are poignant reminders of the senior year.

Election to the Tech Legion is one of the highest honors that a graduating senior may receive. The Tech Legion is an honorary society consisting of ten percent of the senior class. This ten percent is selected according to the accumulative numbers of merit citations that each student has received. Those receiving the highest and who have no unfavorable office records are eligible for membership in the Tech Legion.

Merits are given by each teacher at the close of every semester to those pupils who show traits which contribute to group achievement, bring favorable personal consideration, or aid in personal success. Participation in extra-curricular activities and school service are also principles which help a student earn merit citations. The teacher is allowed to distribute merits to 20 per cent of each class.

Students are notified as to their Legion standing through the mail. On Legion Day the students are recognized at an all school assembly. The Legion is composed of sixty seniors. The boy and the girl with the highest number of merits are chosen co-commanders of the Legion. The remaining 10 per cent of the members are honored as captains.

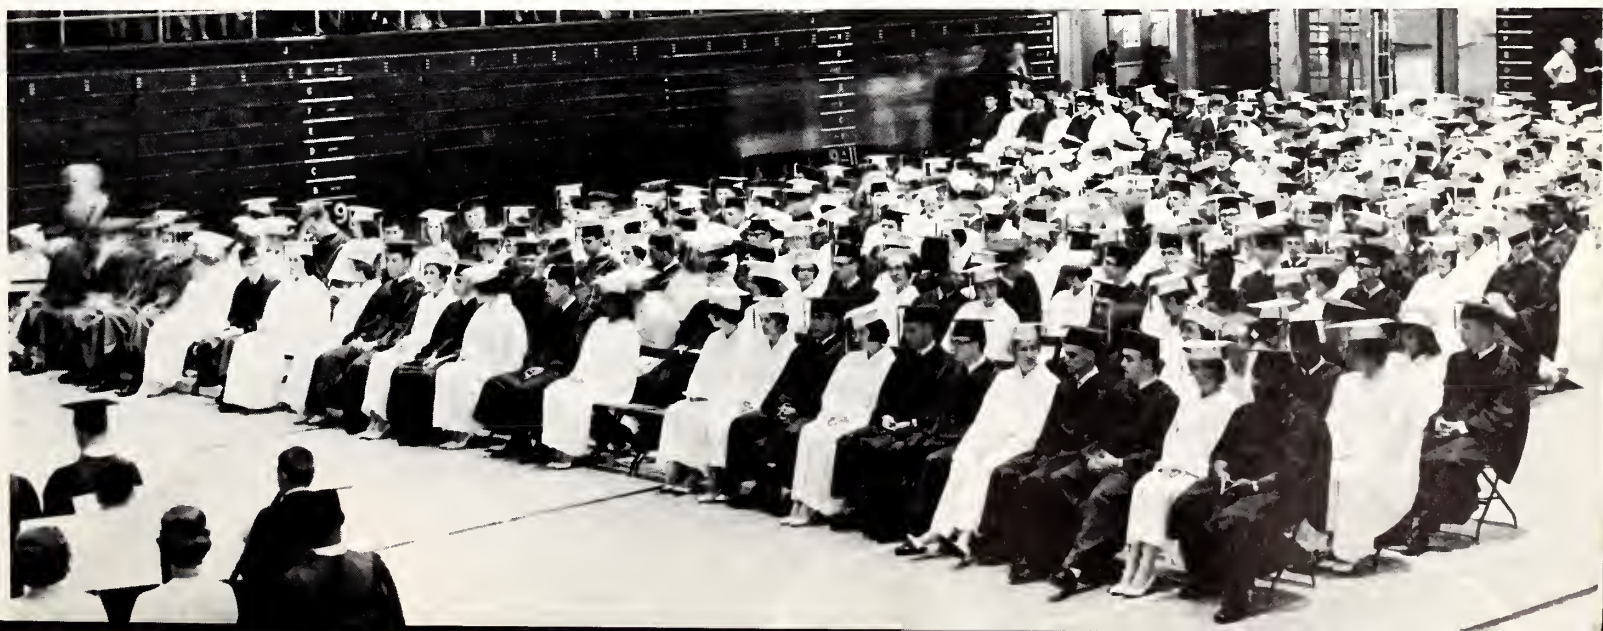

Mr. Robert Belding, Mathematics Department head, is chairman of the Tech Legion committee. Other members of the Tech Legion committee are Miss Irene Rhodes, whose duty consists of contacting guest speakers; Miss Margaret Peterson, checking and rechecking records; Mr. Charles Glore, seating arrangements and certificates; and Mrs. Louise McCormick, Legion Tea.

Seniors, faculty and parents enjoy annual Legion Tea.

Seniors eagerly await the distribution of diplomas.

Then said a teacher, Speak to us of Teaching.

And he said:

No man can reveal to you aught but that which already lies half asleep in the dawning of your knowledge.

The teacher who walks in the shadow of the temple, among his followers, gives not of his wisdom but rather of his faith and his lovingness.

If he is indeed wise he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind

For the vision of one man lends not its wings to another man.

And even as each one of you stands alone in God's knowledge, so must each one of you be alone in his knowledge of God and in his understanding of the earth.

As the sun sets on the closing page of this yearbook, we the Yearbook Staff of 1964 would like to acknowledge some of the people who have made it possible. Often they have gone out of their way to help us. They have lifted our spirits with smiles and understanding. Many businesses have given us their time and advertising.

The days have gone fast. It seems that only yesterday we were making plans, writing copy, and taking pictures for our yearbook. Now it is finished, and we would like to say thank you to the many friends who have made our task easier.

The Yearbook Staff

Mr. Wolker, who hid donuts in his desk...

New Stoffers, who got the impression that they had to work...

Mory, who cluttered the blackboard with her notes...

Mrs. R., who made our Christmas complete with her green and red hose...

Mr. Puckett, who served as our "crying towel"...
